April 2013

Hand Over Fist

By Richard Everett

Angus, returning home to convalesce after a serious heart attack brought on, Connie believes, by City job stress, finds a less than peaceful household. Sid and Gary archetypal British workmen, are endeavouring to finish a kitchen extension whilst eyeing up a loft conversion; son Philip conduct a 24-hour shares dealership, sniffing coke to keep him going and inept brother Roger and his long-suffering wife, Gwen, bring their never-ending financial problems round. Angus is anxious to return to work but this vetoed by Connie. In his defence Angus insists that carrying on is the easy option—stopping the difficult one!
